

Dear Church Family,

I pray that your home is filled with the joy and peace of Christ this Advent season, despite the uncertainty and turmoil of 2020. As believers, we can gain comfort in the certainty of our Savior's sovereignty and love. And, we can find hope, and even joy, in the truth of what we have been taught—that the Lord will take this year and all that has happened and turn it for good, for His purposes, and for His glory.

Our faith and knowledge of the Lord is a precious gift. It's a gift deposited in us that many of our friends, neighbors and families don't yet have. And in this year, maybe more than any other, we have an opportunity to show them what it means to follow Jesus. We have an opportunity to love Jesus by loving those around us, in His name and in His power. What a privilege it is that the Lord would entrust us to be His church and His ambassadors during this time.

This Christmas Eve, the Perimeter family will not be able to physically gather together at Medlock Bridge Road. Instead, we will be Home for Christmas with all the sweetness of the season that this brings to our minds. And though we are physically separated, we are united in faith, worship and our mission to be Jesus wherever God has placed us this season.

We have prepared this Home for Christmas gift as a way to care for your family, encourage you in your faith, and equip you as you seek to love those around you in the name of Jesus. Let's walk in radical dependence and expectant excitement of what He might do in and through the family of Perimeter Church this Christmas!

Grateful for you,
